HOWE MARKS PERSONAL HIGH AGAINST BOSTON

Gordie Howe set a personal record when he tallied 24 points against Boston in 1962-63. The two-dozen points, made up of 13 goals and 11 assists, were the most he's ever scored on one team in one season. His previous high was 23 points (accomplished three times). Howe's showing against Boston last season was Detroit's top individual performance. As league and team scoring leader, he led in point-getting versus each opponent. He scored 19 points on New York (6 goals, 13 assists), 16 points on Chicago (5 and 11), 15 on Toronto (9 and 6) and 12 on Montreal (5 and 7). The figures add up to 38 goals and 48 assists for a for a pace-setting total of 86 points.

"Mr. Red Wing" — GORDIE HOWE

NOW PLAYING GOAL FOR DETROIT: NO. 9 - HOWE!

After watching him play hockey in his classic, smooth style, many fans have come to the conclusion that the only thing Gordie Howe can't do is play goal. Well, here's proof that the "Big Guy" can do that, too! He is shown blocking a shot from Toronto's Frank Mahovlich in a game December 26, 1962, at Maple Leaf Gardens. Gordie filled in expertly for Terry Sawchuk who had been removed for an extra attacker.

The answer is yes as the above picture suggests. In hopes that the Howe legend will be carried on and on, Gordie has had his two oldest sons on skates for several years. Flanking Gordie are Mark 8 and Marty 9.

PART ONE:
The Current Season

SIDNEY GERALD (SID) ABEL

MANAGER-COACH

Born: Melville, Saskatchewan, February 22, 1918.

In his sixth full season as Red Wing coach and second as general manager, Sid Abel has surrounded himself with many capable "lieutenants". For if the job of coaching a big league hockey club is difficult, that of managing and coaching is doubly tough. For executive assistance, the 45-year-old Abel calls on such long-time authorities as Jimmie Skinner, who serves as head scout and farm system director, Johnny Mitchell, who is supervisor of affiliated pro farm clubs and manager of Detroit's Indianapolis team, and Baz Bastien, manager of the Wings' farm club in Pittsburgh. That Abel can handle his duel positions alone goes without saying, but in today's sport of professional hockey with its many legal by-laws, complicated and technical regulations, an executive needs right-hand men to see that nothing is over-looked in operating the franchise.

Before assuming the two jobs upon the retirement of Jack Adams in April, 1962, Abel coached the Wings for 4-1/2 years. He took over the coaching chores in mid-season 1957-58 from an ailing Skinner who had run the club for the previous three years. Under Abel's direction the Wings have advanced to the playoff finals in two of the past three seasons, including last year when his club turned out to be the surprise of the league and, with a little more luck, could have gone all the way.

As a manager in the trading market, Sid has a perfect average: three successful deals out of three tries. He has engineered swaps in which the Wings got Doug Barkley (from Chicago), Pete Goegan (back from New York) and Andre Pronovost (from Boston). Last summer, he made a trade for two players who should help the team both right now (Ron Ingram) and in the future (Roger Crozier). Also under Sid's guidance the Detroit organization has picked up much needed help in each of the last two league drafts.

Abel's fine 11-year playing record with Detroit speaks for itself and every recent Red Wing fan knows that he rates as the best all-around center in local history. In his NHL career, he scored 189 goals, hitting his high mark in 1949-50 with 34. His best overall season was the one before that, when as a 31-year-old whiz he led the league in goals and was named the most valuable player. 1948-49 was also his first of four outstanding years centering the famous "Production Line" with Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay.

A stirring leader of his fellow players, Adams first appointed him captain in 1942-43 and in seven years as such, he led his squad to three Stanley Cup championships. A versatile player who used his head as well as his body to play the game, Abel originally was a left wing, but Adams switched him to center and he made the All-Star team at first one position, then the other at different stages in his career. Now Sid made the select team again last year - this time as coach. Because the Wings were runners-up in the playoffs, he won the job of directing the All-Stars against Toronto. Next year he hopes to be in the All-Star game again, only this time as coach of the new Stanley Cup winners.

NORMAN DOUGLAS (DOUG) BARKLEY

DEFENSE

Born: Lethbridge, Alberta, January 6, 1937. Height 6'2". Weight 195 lbs.

By the slimmest of margins (two-tenths of a point), defenseman Doug Barkley missed receiving the National Hockey League's rookie-of-the-year award last year. But in the minds of both the Detroit fans and management he should have won the trophy as a result of an excellent season in his first complete exposure to the NHL. Owner-President, Bruce Norris, showed his appreciation of Doug's work by rewarding him after the season with a $1000 bonus (the same amount that goes with the league trophy). And to top it off he did receive a rookie-of-the-year award, being the recipient of the Red Wings' own best first-year player trophy.

Barkley came on the Detroit hockey scene like a dream-come-true: a big, rugged defenseman who could both shoot the puck and knock down opposing forwards. In a fine trade, Sid Abel obtained the rearguard from Chicago in exchange for two forwards who weren't included in the Red Wing picture.

As a Black Hawk farm hand, Doug became dizzy moving between Calgary and Buffalo for six years. Sandwiched in among his undistinguished minor league stints were two brief stop-overs in Chicago. What attracted Detroit was his sudden development with Calgary in 1961-62. He blossomed into a scorer, setting a new Western League record for defensemen with 25 goals. He also finished second in the MVP poll and made the first All-Star team.

Chicago apparently was not as impressed by these occurrences as Detroit was and Abel was able to make the two-for-one deal at the 1962 league meetings. A question mark at camp because of his inexperience in the NHL, he quickly fitted in on the Detroit defense and turned in a highly successful year. Now, with a year's valuable experience behind him, big Doug should be bigger and better this season.

HENRY (HANK) BASSEN

GOALTENDER

Born: Calgary, Alberta, December 6, 1932. Height 5'10". Weight 170 lbs.

Detroit's calling up of Hank Bassen from Pittsburgh in January of last year almost precipitated a civil war between the parent Red Wings and the irate Hornet fans. This was because Bassen is so popular in the Steel City that the people just wouldn't stand for losing the only bright spot in a dismal season. However, up to Detroit he came, to play in 17 games in Terry Sawchuk's absence, and as usual he pleased the local fans as much as he did the Pittsburgh crowds.

Detroit has seen Bassen in goal now for parts of three seasons, since the 30-year-old redhead first arrived in town in 1960. He spent the next two years as part of the Wings' two-goalie system and handled his job in fine (if not orthodox) style. Hank hung up averages of 2.98 in his first Detroit stint (in 34 games) and then lowered it to 2.81 in 1961-62 (in 27 starts). Last year Sawchuk reclaimed the Detroit goal all alone and Bassen was dispatched to the Hornets where he managed to survive the year working behind a team that won only 20 games and a defense that allowed a total of 317 goals.

Bassen was a product of the draft system, being claimed by Detroit from the New York chain three years ago. He had been a triple-threat man the previous year in the minors, being the All-Star goalie in the Western League, tying as most valuable player and back-stopping Vancouver to the WHL championship.

Before his big season, Hank lists five years of minor league movements. His only NHL experience during those days was two brief stays with Chicago. After 12 games in 1955 with the Hawks, he was traded to Detroit as a part of the famous Lindsay-Hall deal. But he was loaned out the next year and subsequently traded to New York.

HENRY EDWARD "HANK" CIESLA

CENTER

Born: St. Catharines, Ontario, October 15, 1934. Height 6'2". Weight 190 lbs.

Big Hank Ciesla was another draft purchase for the Detroit management over the summer. He attracted everyone's attention last season as the result of a sensational year in which he scored a league-leading 42 goals as a member of the Cleveland Barons. With his 56 assists, he totaled 98 points to finish second in American League scoring and earn recognition as second All-Star center. (Another Red Wing draftee, Art Stratton, was first.)

Ciesla (pronounced Cease-la) has had a peculiar record in pro hockey. A highly-touted junior when he was a stand-out with Chicago's St. Catharines team in the OHA, Hank was promoted right to the NHL when he was 21. He played two full seasons with the Black Hawks and then was sent to New York where he put in two more years. But in the four years, he failed to live up to his advance billings, scored only 26 goals, was farmed out and consequently has not made it back to the National League for four seasons.

DID YOU KNOW?

That Sid Abel played an important part in the NHL debut of two of the present Red Wings? Detroit's Manager-Coach can boast of helping both Gordie Howe and Terry Sawchuk get off to successful starts in the league. The records show that Abel assisted Howe on his first NHL goal, Oct. 16, 1946, against Toronto at Olympia. "Old Bootnose" also scored the winning goal in Sawchuk's first NHL shutout, Jan. 15, 1950, against the Rangers in New York.

ROGER ALLAN CROZIER

GOAL TENDER

Born: Bracebridge, Ontario, March 16, 1942. Height 5'8". Weight 150 lbs.

When Sid Abel traded Howie Young last summer, local hockey fans were so interested in the penalty-prone defenseman's departing they failed to realize that Detroit received a couple of fine players in the deal. The younger, smaller and least noticed of these two newcomers is Roger Crozier, 21-year-old goalie who didn't waste time in training camp making his presence felt. He performed magnificently and impressed not only Abel but Indianapolis coach Tony Leswick who immediately wanted him (and got him) for the Capitols' goal.

Crozier's style is similar to both Terry Sawchuk and Glenn Hall - he approximates Sawchuk in that he crouches very low to get an unrestricted view of the puck and he resembles Hall in the way he moves around in the nets. Roger had a splendid chance to study Hall in the four years he was a rising young star in the Chicago chain.

His junior career was spent in St. Catharines where he was the All-Star goalie in the OHA for three straight years. In 1959-60 when he was only 18, Roger led the Teepees to the coveted Memorial Cup, almost single-handedly beating Detroit's Western farm club, the Edmonton Oil Kings, in the final series.

As a first-year pro last season, Crozier performed in the now-defunct Eastern Professional League, with the Hawks' farm club that eventually ended up in St. Louis after opening in Syracuse. A very mobile netminder, Roger roamed around enough to pick up an assist and 12 penalty minutes last year, not letting his small size interfere with his duty of keeping not only pucks but opponents out of the goal crease.

When Abel included Crozier in the Young swap, it was his intention to keep Roger in Detroit as the Red Wings' stand-by goalie. But Roger's sterling showing in camp and in the exhibition games earned him a regular minor league job. However, Abel was so impressed with his goal-tending that Detroiters could see Crozier filling in during any emergencies this year.

ALEXANDER PETER (ALEX) DELVECCHIO

Born: Fort William, Ontario, December 4, 1931. Height 6'. Weight 190 lbs.

Captain of the Red Wings in 1963-64 is Alex Delvecchio. Last year while wearing the "C" for the first time, "Fats" put in a terrific season. He hit the 20-mark in goals for the fifth time in his 12-year NHL career, picked up a personal high of 44 assists, and finished eighth in the league scoring race.

Placed by Sid Abel between Gordie Howe and Parker MacDonald on the team's big line, Delvecchio helped his linemates to a top year in which they led the league in goal-scoring by a line with 91 goals. This year the versatile forward has been switched to a wing position on another unit in an effort to give the club better balance.

A durable player, Alex has taken part in every one of the Wings' games for the last six seasons. Together with the 46 games he played in at the end of the 1956-57 campaign, he has a consecutive game streak of 466 going into this year.

Delvecchio is a valuable man to have around: he can and does play either center or left wing (he's made the All-Star team at each position), is one of the league's best penalty-killers, and fires his hard shot from the point on the power play. The Detroit management saw a lot of talent in him early in his hockey days and as a result, his minor pro career lasted only six games. In fact, he was turned professional in 1951 despite the fact that he was still eligible for two more years of junior play.

Two years ago, Alex got his 200th NHL goal and became only the third man in the Detroit hockey history to do so. He also ranks third in career point production (behind Howe and Ted Lindsay in both departments) on the team.

ALEXANDER SELM (ALEX) FAULKNER

CENTER

Born: Bishop's Falls, Newfoundland, May 21, 1936. Height 5'8". Weight 165 lbs.

For Alex Faulkner, the final siren of the last playoff game last year didn't end the roar of the crowd in his ears. The "season" was extended to May before he was able to finally complete a real fairy-tale adventure. Post-playoff events for him included marriage, and a Florida honeymoon, followed by a tremendous home-town reception.

In his first shot at the National League, Alex not only had to make good for himself, but also for the entire province of Newfoundland which never could claim a National Leaguer before. Because of this, he automatically had about 400,000 fans, all hoping that he would stick with the Red Wings. Stick he did as he skated in the third-line center position and scored ten goals while doing it. In the playoffs he really made it big as he hit for five goals, including three game-winning shots, two in the Chicago semi-finals and one (the only game Detroit won) in the Toronto finals.

So a personally successful year was capped by his wedding in April to Doris Reid, his home-town sweetheart, a two-week vacation in Florida, and a gigantic home-coming which saw a 1000-car motorcade escort he and his bride, and a 500-person turnout for a dinner at which he received scores of presents in recognition of his being the first Newfoundlander to make the NHL.

The 27-year-old Faulkner sports a slight build, a crew-cut head of blond hair and an abundance of natural hockey talent. An ability to anticipate plays assists him greatly, both offensively and defensively. He is a fine playmaker who uses his intelligence to think about what he's doing while playing. A Detroiter via the league's draft route, he was let go by Toronto, the team that originally uncovered him playing senior hockey in St. John's. As a Maple Leaf subject at Rochester, he led the team in scoring in his full whirl at the pros. Despite this accomplishment, Alex was left unprotected at the 1962 meetings and the Wings spent $20,000 for him. A fine year in Detroit has added Red Wing fans to the list of provincial followers, so with all that pushing behind him, "Newfy" should be an even better player in his second NHL season.

WILLIAM ALEXANDER (BILL) GADSBY

DEFENSE; ASSISTANT COACH

Born: Calgary, Alberta, August 8, 1927. Height 6'. Weight 190 lbs.

Elder statesman of National Hockey League defensemen is Bill Gadsby of the Red Wings. At 36, Gadsby is playing his 18th season in hockey's big league. Detroit is happy that Bill is now, and has been for three years, on its side after seeing him working so effectively as an opponent for many years with Chicago and New York. And Bill is happy, too, for now some playoff money is finally coming his way - last year was his first experience in a Stanley Cup final series and only his fifth time in the playoffs in his lengthy career.

Gadsby broke into the league the same year as Gordie Howe (1946) and they rank as the oldest players in the point of service in the NHL. Last year "Gads" joined Gordie as the only players to play 1000 or more games in the league. As assistant coaches of the Wings and as long-time opponents and now teammates, the two are very close and work well together in helping the manager and the captain keep up the spirit on the club.

Eight years with Chicago and seven more with New York preceded Bill's present stay in Detroit. Sid Abel made a key deal in 1961 to get him, having to give up only cash and a minor league defenseman. But if it weren't for Red Kelly's balking at a previously attempted trade, Gadsby would have been a Red Wing a year earlier. For Bill was part of the ill-fated Detroit-New York swap that Kelly nixed when he "retired" rather than report to the Rangers.

A rushing rearguard, Gadsby has handled more than his share of scoring through the years while also taking excellent care of his defensive duties. As a result, Bill has totaled 123 goals in his 17 winters. He holds one league record - most assists in a season by a defenseman, 46 in 1958-59 - and several honors: six All-Star selections and three times runner-up as the NHL's best defenseman.

PETER JOHN (PETE) GOEGAN

DEFENSE

Born: Fort William, Ontario, March 6, 1935. Height 6'1". Weight 195 lbs.

Hockey Quiz: Other than the team's veteran stars, who is the oldest Red Wing in point of local service? Answer: Defenseman Pete Goegan. Big Pete has been on the Detroit blue line since 1958 and this year is his seventh as a wearer of the winged wheel. Goegan has accomplished this relatively long tenure in Detroit despite the fact that he was traded to New York two years ago. But as the result of some unique manipulations, he was back as a Red Wing almost before he was missed. The deal which exchanged him for Noel Price toward the end of the 1961-62 season was exactly reversed just before the start of the following year.

It was another trade that originally sent Goegan to Detroit. Toward the close of a second successful year in Cleveland, Pete was swapped to the Wings and played the final games of the 1957-58 season in the NHL. Ever since, it's been a routine of one complete year with Detroit followed by one split between the Wings and a minor league team. As the fifth defenseman last year, Goegan (pronounced Goy-gun) edged closer to a regular berth and perhaps this could be the year for such a development.

Lantern-jawed and harsh-spoken, big Pete looks the part of a rough-and-tumble defenseman, which he originally was. A change several years ago in his on-the-ice behavior has resulted in fewer penalties, less tough, wild play and more polished performances. But Goegan still reserves the right and has the ability to line up an opponent now and then, just to keep 'em honest.

Pete, now 28, hails from Fort William where he works as a carpenter in the off-season and lives with his wife and three children.

EDWARD GEORGE "TED" HAMPSON

CENTER

Born: Togo, Saskatchewan, December 11, 1936. Height 5'8". Weight 165 lbs.

A new member of the Red Wing organization via the National Hockey League's draft, Ted Hampson came to last fall's Detroit training camp with hopes of catching on with his third NHL club. But he had to do it in one of the Wings' strongest positions - center. In the pre-season schedule, Sid Abel staged a three-man battle between newcomer Hampson and Eddie Joyal and Alex Faulkner for the teams' fourth center position.

As a candidate for the Redshirts, Hampson had two outstanding qualities going for him - skating and defensive work. The 26-year-old Westerner (he'll be 27 in December) is known for his ability to skate and his fine back-checking. Unfortunately, he comes up short in the sharp-shooting department and this always has been a mark against him in his efforts to land a regular job in the NHL.

Ted has had previous experiences with both New York and Toronto, and is no stranger to the workings of the League draft as that is how he has moved from team to team for three times now. A native to Togo, Saskatchewan, Hampson played his junior hockey with the Flin Flon Bombers, then in the Ranger system. He spent two seasons as a pro in the New York chain before being claimed by the Maple Leafs in 1959.

His first NHL trial lasted 41 games and then he was farmed out to the Leafs' Rochester club. New York made up for letting him go in the draft by choosing him in the 1960 selections and he was a Ranger for the next two seasons. Last year, New York dropped him in mid-year to its Baltimore farm and then failed to protect him last summer in the draft, resulting in the switch to Detroit colors for 1963-64 for young Mr. Hampson.

GORDON (GORDIE) HOWE

RIGHT WING; ASSISTANT COACH

Born: Floral, Saskatchewan, March 31, 1928. Height 6'. Weight 201 lbs.

Winner of hockey's "triple crown" last year, Gordie Howe added more glory to his brilliant 17-year career as a result of a tremendous season. "Mr. Big" of the Red Wings was his usual dominant, over-powering self around the league in 1962-63. He led the league in scoring with 86 points, was voted the NHL's most valuable player, and was named to the first All-Star team. Thus, both the Ross and Hart trophies became his personal property, each for a record sixth time while the All-Star selection was his 14th - eight first team picks and six seconds.

His 38 goals last year (also a league-leading figure) enabled Gordie to move up within five goals of Rocket Richard's all-time goal-scoring record of 544. Howe's fifth goal in 1963-64 will be his 545th regular season tally and will allow him to annex Richard's former "unbreakable" record to his ever-growing, impressive list of league marks. It will give him a clean sweep across the board of four big NHL records - most games, most assists, and most points. And even Richard's overall goal total is not safe; Rocket added 82 playoff goals to his 544 in season play for a grand total of 626. Howe was up to 588 prior to the current season, and another output like last year's will put him even.

Holder of a multitude of Detroit records, Gordie completely dominates the Red Wing picture. He is the team's acknowledged leader, both on the ice and off, and as such, has the title (along with Bill Gadsby) of assistant coach. Sid Abel respects the maturity, keen judgment and level-headedness of these two and together with Captain Alex Delvecchio they are usually involved in all policy changes and player moves.

Amazingly durable, Gordie stands to miss six games this season if the unusual pattern of his games played in the past several years is followed this season. And this would really be a long absence for him. Despite tremendous physical punishment, he has been forced to sit out only 40 regular season games, and he has been able to turn in full seasons on 12 occasions.

With the Detroit Hockey Club for 18 of its 38 seasons now, Gordie can look back on many wonderful developments since he originally lined up with the 1946-47 Wings at the tender age of 18. Only one year of minor pro experience separated this big, shy, talented youngster from juvenile hockey in Saskatoon. He was forced to miss junior play completely as he was declared an illegal transfer when Jack Adams sought to place him with the Galt (Ontario) Red Wings for the 1944-45 season. After a year of inactivity, the 17-year-old Howe was offered a professional contract the next fall and was sent off to Omaha in the old United States League. His coach was Tommy Ivan, a teammate was Jimmie Skinner and a USHL opponent was an 18-year-old defenseman by the name of Bill Gadsby, playing his first year in the Chicago system. A 22-goal rookie season with the Knights prompted Howe's elevation to the Wings the following year. An indication of things to come occurred in his very first NHL game, Oct. 16, 1946, when he scored his initial big league goal against Toronto's Turk Broda. Three years of development with the Red Wings preceded his eventual exploding into a star starting with a 35-goal year in 1949-50. In the intervening years, he has become a superstar, skating his way into being recognized the National Hockey League's best all-around player in history.

Howe the active, glittering star on the ice becomes Howe the calm, perfect gentleman off. A humble athlete, Gordie speaks with a soft voice, in a language tinged with sly humor that helps him make friends of everyone he meets. He is a proud and dedicated person who has always remained aware of the hard work and sacrifice that he went through to attain his current status. Perhaps he demonstrates his admirable qualities best when he is relaxed at home with Colleen and the four children. Then it is Howe the father temporarily substituting for Gordie the great. He has said that he wants to play hockey at least long enough so his children will be aware of what he did for a living. Since his youngest son is just 3, he should be around for many more years to come, to the joy of local fans and sorrow of opponents.

RONALD WALTER (RON) INGRAM

DEFENSE

Born: Toronto, Ontario, July 5, 1933. Height 5'11". Weight 185 lbs.

An opening was created on the Red Wing defense by a trade last summer, and since Ron Ingram was the defenseman obtained in the deal, it was only natural that he would fill the gap. A simple plan? Not really, but that's the way it worked out, and Detroit fans should see a lot of and approve of this steady, capable new rearguard this year.

Ingram seems to be one of those long-time minor league defensemen who matures into a National Leaguer after he has several years of experience behind him. At 30, Ron can count eight seasons in the minors, the last six with Buffalo of the American League. A member of the champion Bisons last year, he recorded his finest season, both offensively (29 assists and 32 points) and defensively, in his career.

Chicago chattel after a stint in the Montreal system in his first year as a pro, Ingram played the better part of the season seven years ago with the Hawks. During that year, his only goal was scored against Detroit and the tally on November 25 at Chicago stands as his sole NHL score. Sentenced to Buffalo in 1957, Ron became a permanent member of the Bisons and showed an improved record in each of his half-dozen years as such.

If he hits this year like he did when he was called up by Chicago in the playoffs against Detroit last year, local followers will surely welcome him with open arms. For it will be remembered that it was Ingram who forced Vic Stasiuk out of the semi-finals last spring with perhaps the best body-check the Hawks threw.

Ron is married and has two children, a boy and a girl. In the off season, he is a frozen food salesman in Toronto for former Red Wing Gus Mortson's firm.

LAWRENCE JOSEPH (LARRY) JEFFREY

Born: Goderich, Ontario, October 12, 1940. Height 5'11". Weight 180 lbs.

After an "up-and-down" year in 1962-63, Red Wing officials are trusting that Larry Jeffrey will stay "up" all season with the '63-64 Wings. The 23-year-old left wing was "up" for 53 games last year, but was sent "down" to Pittsburgh for 21 games due to weaknesses spotted in his NHL play. He comes highly recommended and perhaps this will be the season for him to show his true colors.

Larry has accounted for five goals in each of his two previous trials with the Wings, compared with marks of 20 and 14 in his pair of stops in the minor pro leagues. He ended a fine three-year junior career by scoring 28 times in 1960-61, his fine campaign as a Hamilton Red Wing. "Jeff" joined the pro ranks the next fall as he was assigned to Edmonton.

A hustler all the way, Jeffrey has all the tools to make it big in the NHL and no one wants to see it happen more than the sandy-haired native of Goderich, Ontario. The intangible qualities of desire and determination are and have been Larry's since he first decided to make hockey a career. As a member of Detroit's third line, these attributes, plus Jeffrey's natural aggressiveness should make him a sure-fire success.

His performance last year was puzzling at times in that in spite of his abilities he was found lacking in some specifics of the game. In addition, he had trouble locating the net and his scoring was limited. In January, he was demoted to the minors where he quickly regained his form. Called up again, the story in time was the same and down he went again, this time to finish the year in Pittsburgh.

Promoted for the playoffs, Larry finally hit his stride and ended with three goals and three assists in nine post-season games. If he can do equally as well over a whole season, Jeffrey should be on his way to his lifelong ambition - stardom in the National Hockey League.

EDWARD ABEL (EDDIE) JOYAL

CENTER

Born: St. Albert, Alberta, May 8, 1940. Height 5'11". Weight 180 lbs.

Eddie Joyal was looked to for great things this season, but a poor showing in training camp - necessitated his demotion to Pittsburgh. If Joyal's minor league records and reports are any indication, and they should be, then it is that Detroit has a future NHL star "down on the farm".

A product of the Wings' Western Canada "incubator", Joyal starred with the Edmonton Oil Kings in his final years of junior hockey. Entering the pro ranks in 1960, tall Eddie made the transition as easily as he makes his fakes and he scored an even 20 goals in his first try with the Edmonton Flyers. The next year as a sophomore in the Western League, he zoomed his goal production to 37, tops on the champion Flyer team.

After four years in the West, the Detroit club decided to move this talented pivotman, of whom they had received many glowing accounts, to the East. At the 1962 Red Wing training camp, Joyal made a determined bid to make the Detroit squad but lost out at the last minute as the nod for the third line center went to Alex Faulkner.

Farmed to Pittsburgh, Eddie turned his attention to beating American League goalies, which he accomplished 29 times despite missing 18 games while on call to Detroit. He paced the Hornets in scoring and ran third in the AHL's top rookie race. Summoned to the Wings on two occasions, Joyal had to wait nine games for his first NHL goal but like most all of his goals it was a dandy, and stood up as the winner against Toronto on Feb. 10. Up again for the season's final two games, Eddie starred in the finale, picking up a goal and two assists in a 3-2 win over the Leafs.

Born: Sydney, Nova Scotia, June 14, 1933. Height 5'10". Weight 175 lbs.

Parker MacDonald accomplished last season what only five other Red Wings have been able to do in the club's 37-year history. The 30-year-old sniper scored a rousing total of 33 goals as he teamed with Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio on the league's top-scoring line. MacDonald's 61 points were good for 11th place in the scoring race as he came within nine goals of equalling his total previous NHL output, achieved in 280 games over parts of five seasons with three different teams.

Until his emergence as a major league sharp-shooter, MacDonald was known as a good minor league scorer but just a journeyman left winger in the NHL. It was his three outstanding scoring years in the American League that accounted for his receiving shots at the NHL. But each time he was found wanting and was sent back to the minors. Well aware of his previous failures, Sid Abel nevertheless was impressed with Parker's ability to "put the puck in the net" and consequently chose him as Howe's opposite winger on the '62-63 Wings' top line.

He responded immediately to the test and was an early season sensation, running up totals of eight goals in the year's first 10 games, and 16 in the first 27. In January, he became the fifth man to enter the league's 20-goal club, and in so doing bettered by one his previous Red Wings goals, tallied as a regular in 1960-61 and as a part-time worker the following year. His 33 goals were important ones, too - 8 winners, 17 tie-breakers and 9 first-of-game. He was especially a threat on the Wings' powerful power-play unit and racked up 16 goals while working with a man advantage. As a one-season high scorer in Detroit, he is topped only by such shooters as Howe, Carl Liscombe, Mud Bruneteau and Abel, and equalled Ted Lindsay's best total.

A Detroit draft choice in 1960, MacDonald came to Detroit after seven years of moving around in both the Toronto and New York organizations. But now that his scoring last year has made him a permanent NHLer, his only moves should be up and down his left wing position with the Red Wings.

BRUCE CAMERON MacGREGOR

Born: Edmonton, Alberta, April 26, 1941. Height 5'10". Weight 175 lbs.

Carrying the spirit of the younger generation of Red Wing players is 22-year-old Bruce MacGregor. First on view on Detroit ice when he was only 19, Bruce is now in his third season in the National Hockey League. This red-haired speedster is valuable to the Wings not only for his fine work on the right wing but also because he has developed into a potent penalty-killer.

An 11-goal scorer last year, MacGregor showed that he could handle a regular wing position in the big leagues. Morever, he proved to be one of the best men in the NHL at skating off penalties as he and the now-departed Val Fonteyne teamed up as a terrific penalty-killing pair. As such Brucie put to good use his puck sense and his ability to skate. He possesses powerful, youthful legs and a "good head". One of his goals was scored while Detroit was short-handed, and the fact that the team allowed only two more powerplay goals than last even though it totaled more than 250 more penalty minutes, is a tribute to the work of the teams' penalty-killers, especially MacGregor.

Back in 1961, Bruce's successful professional debut with the Edmonton Flyers was interrupted by a summons to Detroit. He played the final 12 games with the Wings and moved right into the playoffs. Two weeks before his 20th birthday, MacGregor scored the winning goal in one of the two games the Wings won in the finals with Chicago. As a regular the following season he tallied six goals while learning his way through his rookie year in the league.

Another player out of the Wings' Edmonton set-up, Bruce prepped with the Oil Kings, captaining them in 1960 when they reached the Memorial Cup finals. The following season he abandoned his starry junior career to turn pro for the biggest bonus the Detroit club has ever paid. He didn't waste time earning his pay as he became a 20-goal man for the Flyers before the Wings called him up. The trip from Edmonton was a one-way affair with the youngster never looking back once he arrived in the NHL.

JOSEPH ARMAND ANDRE PRONOVOST

Born: Shawinigan Falls, Quebec, July 9, 1936. Height 5'9". Weight 165 lbs.

Sid Abel's first player trade in his initial year as Red Wing manager-coach brought to Detroit a Frenchman named Pronovost. No, not Marcel but Andre (and they are not related). As a new Redshirt, Andre caught fire and totaled 13 goals last year, fifth best production on the team. The same number of tallies this season would enable the 27-year-old left winger to join the NHL's selective 100-goal club.

Entering his eighth big league season, Andre starts out as a spare forward on the 1963-64 Wings. But Abel expects him to get a lot of skating done because of his new penalty-killing duties. A fast skater, good defensive worker and scoring threat from anywhere on the ice, Pronovost should prove to be a valuable member of the squad.

With his move to Detroit in December of last season, Andre joined his third NHL team. Originally a player in the Montreal organization, he was with the high-flying junior Canadiens in the middle '50's. A new pro for the 1956-57 season, he was promoted to the NHL and Montreal after only seven games in the Quebec League. A ten-goal scorer in his rookie year, Andre upped his output to 16 (his best mark so far) the next season while working on the Habs' "Kid Line" with Claude Provost and Phil Goyette. This fine checking unit stayed together all through Montreal's "big" years, and as a result, Andre can claim membership on four Stanley Cup winners.

An early slump in 1960 prompted a switch to Boston where two years ago he came within one of equalling his top goal record. Off to a slow start last year, Andre was considered expendable by new coach Milt Schmidt. Now, with a full year in Detroit ahead of him, Andre looks forward to helping the Wings stay a winner in 1963-64.

JOSEPH RENE MARCEL PRONOVOST

DEFENSE

Born: Lac a la Tortue, Quebec, June 15, 1930. Height 6'. Weight 190 lbs.

In the 37 years of Detroit hockey history, only two players have played 14 or more seasons wearing a Red Wing sweater. The top man on the list is, of course, Gordie Howe, who is in his 18th year. Next is Ebbie Goodfellow whose career spanned 14 seasons in the Motor City. Tying Goodfellow this season for the honor of the second-longest tenure as a Red Wing is Marcel Pronovost, veteran star defenseman.

Detroit's own Flying Frenchman, Pronovost has been a solid fixture on the local scene since 1951 when he first became a regular on the Wings' blueline. In the 13 years since, Marcel's stalwart play and grim determination has earned him the respect of fans, press, and opponents alike. He plays the game all-out with a fire in him which stems from his French blood. His play is almost reckless - he repeatedly intercepts the puck and races down the ice. His patented dashes have taken their toll, even though he is an excellent skater and fine puck carrier. A face full of scars and a nose that has been broken countless times speak silently of the price paid for his hustle.

"Marse's" hockey honors started when he was 19 in his first year of pro play at Omaha where he was voted rookie of the year. He joined Detroit for the 1950 playoffs which the Wings won and he's been on three other Stanley Cup winners since. As a reward for his outstanding play, Pronovost was named to the All-Star team for four straight years from 1957 to 1961.

As a Frenchman on the Detroit team, he has had to carry on alone over most of the years. However, now he has another Gallic skater to buddy with and his name is familiar, Pronovost (Andre) - no relation. Marcel is a very popular player and even in Montreal, where his being a Frenchman comes before his being a Red Wing, he is well-liked by the fans. He lives in a Montreal suburb, Beauharnois, and several years ago the townspeople gave him a "night" at the Forum. A truly rare honor for a truly deserving player.

TERRANCE GORDON (TERRY) SAWCHUK

GOALTENDER

Born: Winnipeg, Manitoba, December 28, 1929. Height 5'11". Weight 180 lbs.

Shut-out king of the National Hockey League is the Red Wings' veteran goaltender, Terry Sawchuk. With 91 shut-outs prior to the current season, Sawchuk is within four of setting a new record. The old standard is 94 held by George Hainsworth. With ten playoff blankings, Terry is over the century mark in shut-outs, a total (101) that may never be topped, except by Sawchuk himself. A tough, fiery competitor, he is also over the 100 mark in another category - total penalty minutes, a rare "accomplishment" for a goalie.

Sawchuk has been wearing the Red Wings' No. 1 sweater since he was 20 when he first came up to Detroit in 1949. Now with 13 big league seasons behind him, he has achieved something no other goalkeeper has - most years in the NHL. In his time, Terry has been called the greatest goalie in history. His list of honors matches his years of service - seven times an All-Star, three times the Vezina Trophy winner and three times a member of a Stanley Cup-winning team. His star was never as bright as it was in the early 1950's when the acrobatic Sawchuk, using his own new "crouch" style, completed five consecutive years of allowing less than two goals a game.

Last season, "Uke's" fine play got Detroit off to its best start ever as he sparked the team by allowing only 13 goals in the first ten games. But, in January, he suffered a badly-cut left hand (from Bob Pulford's skate) and missed 17 games while recuperating. He neatly survived the serious injury to come back and put in a successful year in which he hung up his lowest average since returning to Detroit from Boston in 1957. He wore a facial mask last year for the first time (a model made by Red Wing Trainer Lefty Wilson) and now is a firm supporter of the new protective device.

Born: Perth, Ontario, May 14, 1935. Height 5'9". Weight 160 lbs.

Floyd Smith is a rare type of hockey player - a defensive forward who can also get his share of goals. But the question his Detroit bosses are asking this year is whether he will return to his high scoring of his minor league days. If he doesn't, his position with the Wings will have to rest on his defensive abilities alone.

Last year in 51 Detroit games, he tallied nine times in his first full shot at the NHL despite being with two other big league clubs in his career. Sent down to Pittsburgh on two different occasions, he scored eight goals in 16 games as a Hornet.

Smith was no stranger to the American League last year, having starred for five years with Eddie Shore's Springfield team. It was his great year there in 1961-62 that caused Detroit to draft him out of the New York system. He had led the AHL in goals with 41 and had made the second All-Star team. During the five years with Springfield, his only NHL experience was a 29-game trial with the Rangers three years ago in which he chalked up five goals. Originally Boston-owned, Smitty saw NHL action on two different occasions with the Bruins. In between these, he played with Hershey. He didn't come out of "chocolate town" empty-handed because he met and married the Bears' publicists' daughter there. Floyd was delivered to Shore in 1957 as payment for goalie Don Simmons who departed the Indians for the NHL Bruins, and he learned many tricks of the trade while skating for the former all-time great defenseman.

IRVIN JAMES "IRV" SPENCER

Born: Sudbury, Ontario, December 4, 1939. Height 5'10". Weight 180 lbs.

As recipient of the only serious injury of the 1963 Red Wing training camp, utility man Irv Spencer suffered more than just a shoulder separation. What also suffered was this versatile 25-year-old skater's chance to make the Detroit team for the current year.

When Sid Abel called out Spencer's name last June at the draft meetings, he knew he was obtaining "a player without a position", but regardless, the local management thought enough of Irv's potential at any of his three spots to take a $20,000 gamble on him.

But the injury caused by a Doug Barkley check in the camp's first intra-squad game held Spencer back from displaying his talents at any position except that of interested bystander for a month.

Whether he makes a belated bid for a berth on the Detroit team or is sent down to Pittsburgh remains to be seen when the husky bachelor returns to the ice.

Spencer, like the other NHL-experienced Red Wing newcomer, Ted Hampson, has also been moved around through the draft. Originally Montreal property, he eventually landed with New York and worked his way up to the Rangers in his first year there.

Two full seasons on Broadway as an extra defenseman preceded his being drafted in 1962 by Boston whose coach at that time, Phil Watson, had admired Irv's skating when they both were in New York. As a Bruin, Spencer became a center and as such put in a busy year last season playing on a regular line and working the power play.

Local fans will recall that he scored three of his five 1962-63 goals against the Wings and in general performed like an All-Star in Detroit. After another drafting and despite the untimely injury, perhaps he will again play well here, this time for the Wings.

ARTHUR (ART) STRATTON

CENTER

Born: Winnipeg, Manitoba, October 8, 1935. Height 6'. Weight 180 lbs.

As the Toronto Star headlined it after a Leaf-Wing pre-season game, "Stratton Lands In Paradise", Art Stratton has been installed in probably the most lucrative position on the Detroit team - that of centering the so-called "Gordie Howe line". It might be a highly desired spot, but Art knows full well that it is not at all merely standing around and collecting assists. The job means hard work and the determined Stratton has shown evidence that he means to give it all he can.

Stratton came to the Wings last summer after a tremendously successful year in the minors with Buffalo. The clever pivotman centered the Bissons' first line, led the league in assists with a whopping total of 70 (including a record nine in one game against Pittsburgh), paced the team to the American League season and playoff championships, and made the league's first All-Star team. Despite this, he was not protected from the draft by the parent Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit snapped him up last June for $20,000.

Stratton's work when first put between Howe and Parker MacDonald caused Sid Abel to complete a line switch that he had been thinking about all summer. The Detroit manager moved Alex Delvecchio from the Howe line to a unit with Norm Ullman, discarded his idea of putting Eddie Joyal in his place, and instead decided to go with the highly-regarded newcomer in the big berth.

Art, married and the father of four children, three girls and a boy, has had but 18 games of previous NHL play, staying that long with New York four seasons ago. A veteran minor-leaguer who never actually had a good shot at the National League due to his being a notorious late-starter, Stratton's "bus" has stopped in Cleveland, Winnipeg, Springfield, Kitchener and finally Buffalo.

NORMAN VICTOR ALEXANDER (NORM) ULLMAN

CENTER

Born: Provost, Alberta, December 26, 1935. Height 5'10". Weight 185 lbs.

Make room for the name "Ullman" on the list of the all-time greats of the Detroit Hockey Club. For in only eight seasons, the long under-rated Norm Ullman has skated his way into some exclusive company. And this season should be the one in which he really assumes the role he's been skating toward ever since he slipped on his first Red Wing sweater when he was 19. On two fronts the 27-year-old (he'll be 28 in December) center is ready to make big news: first, another 26-goal year (like last year) will put him into the 200-goal club, and second, 37 points will move him from seventh to fourth among all Detroit players (behind only Gordie Howe, Ted Lindsay and Alex Delvecchio).

A star in the Red Wing sky almost from his first game in Detroit, Ullman has seemingly failed to gain similar recognition in other NHL cities. But quiet Normie would never speak out in his own behalf, instead he lets his stick do the talking. A tremendously capable forward, he can and does do everything asked of him on the ice. He centers a regular line, fills in at left wing when needed, kills penalties with the best in the league, works on the power play, and handles his back-checking chores superbly. In fact, he could get along on his defensive abilities alone, being one of the best "puck-hounds" in the league and a master at stealing pucks and intercepting passes. Take all this plus his record of scoring over 20 goals for the last six years and being among the top scorers in the NHL every year, and it is easy to see why this chunky Westerner is one of the Wings' top stars.

A tireless skater who just hates to sit on the bench, Normie is a steady and efficient player who unless he scores a goal or two might not even attract attention. But it's for sure that he does his job and then some in helping the team. Considering Ullman's aggressiveness and his abundance of ice-time, the fact that he has missed but 12 games in his entire NHL career and has completed full seasons the past four years is remarkable. But on the other hand, it is only a typical part of the brilliant story that he is putting together. And this year's chapter should be the best yet!

RED WING HIGHLIGHTS

- 1962 -

June 6: Red Wings pick up Alex Faulkner, Floyd Smith and Barclay Plager in NHL draft for $20,000 each; Lose Warren Godfrey to Boston. Obtain Doug Barkley from Chicago for Len Lunde and John McKenzie.

July 11: Gordie Howe signs 17th NHL contract; Detroit star first Red Wing to sign for third straight year.

September 4: Alex Delvecchio agrees to contract terms and is named new Red Wing captain, succeeding Gordie Howe who moves up with Bill Gadsby to become assistant coaches to new manager-coach, Sid Abel.

September 8: Training Camp starts at Olympia as Abel greets 78 players; Detroit farm clubs, Pittsburgh and Edmonton, work out with Wings.

October 6: Toronto wins All-Star game, 4-1; Howe gets only goal for Stars to tie Ted Lindsay as top scorer in these games.

October 11: Detroit wins season opener, 2-1, at New York; first opening game win since 1956; Howie Young scores first goal in NHL season play.

October 13: Detroit 0 at Chicago 0; first scoreless game in seven years and Terry Sawchuk's 99th shutout.

October 14: 11,346 -- largest opening night crowd at Olympia -- see Wings beat Montreal 4-1 to take over first place in NHL; Alex Faulkner scores first NHL goal.

October 28: Sawchuk records 100th shutout as Detroit tops Toronto, 2-0.

November 1: Wings blank New York 4-0 to mark longest unbeaten streak at season start in team's history -- eight games (six wins, 2 ties).

November 3: Doug Barkley scores first NHL goal as Detroit rallies for rousing 7-3 win at Toronto. Total is most goals scored by Detroit at Toronto in 18 years and most scored on road in six.

November 8: Red Wings suffer first loss of season, 4-1 at Montreal, after going undefeated in first ten games on eight wins and two ties.

December 2: Detroit falls out of first place for first time; Chicago takes over, 28 points to 26, as Toronto upsets Wings, 3-1 at Olympia.

December 3: Abel trades Forbes Kennedy to Boston for Andre Pronovost.

December 4: Sawchuk hurt in practice; Dennis Riggin in goal for next four games.

December 9: Pronovost scores third Red Wing goal in fourth game as Detroit defeats Leafs, 4-3; Sawchuk replaces injured Riggin in middle of game.

December 15: Detroit beats Chicago, 3-1, to regain first place.

December 25: Wings edge Toronto, 2-1, to win first Christmas night game in six years.

. . . 1962-63 SEASON

- 1963 -

January 12: Terry Sawchuk suffers badly cut hand in Detroit's 2-1 loss at Toronto; doctors predict he will be out for two months.

January 13: Gordie Howe scores his 20th goal for the 14th straight season (equaling Richard's NHL record) in 4-2 win over New York.

January 24: Red Wings tie Montreal 1-1 for 8th straight home game without a loss, 3 wins and 5 ties.

January 26: Year's top crowd (14,988) sees Chicago shutout Detroit, 3-0, in second matinee of season.

January 27: Howe scores 90th winning goal on assist to Hank Bassen in 5-3 win at Boston for team's 20th win and 50th point of season.

January 30: Howie Young sets new team penalty record with 11 minutes in 6-1 win at New York for total of 167, breaking Lindsay's mark of 161.

February 6: Lowell MacDonald's 1st NHL goal gives Wings 3-3 tie at Chicago; Howe and Parker MacDonald each tally their 26th goal.

February 16: Detroit wins its 23rd game to equal last year's victory total; Howe scores goal No. 530 as Wings beat Boston, 3-1.

February 17: Young sets new league penalty record with 27 minutes in 6-1 loss to Montreal for total of 210, breaking Fontinato's mark of 202.

February 23: Howe scores 30th goal for 11th season (NHL record) in 3-2 loss at Chicago; Sawchuk returns to line-up, plays two periods.

February 24: Sawchuk goes all the way after missing 17 games with cut hand as Wings beat New York 3-2 to go one up on last year's win and point totals with 24th win and 61st point.

February 28: Parker MacDonald scores 30th goal in 5-3 loss at Boston.

March 2: Detroit romps to 7-1 triumph over Montreal at the Forum as Howe goes on biggest point night of year with a goal and 3 assists.

March 3: Red Wings clinch playoff berth by beating Rangers 3-2; only second weekend double win; Young scores winner, his 1st goal in 39 games.

March 10: Normie Ullman scores 20th goal for 6th straight year in 4-3 win at Boston.

March 14: Wings rack up 9 goals against New York for biggest total in 9 years, since November 1953; Ullman tallies 3-goal "hat trick".

March 16: Howe gets his 35th goal to collect $1000 bonus.

March 17: Wings beat Chicago 4-2 at Olympia to win their 29th game and pick up their 71st point, each total the highest in six years.

March 24: 23rd annual Trophy Night as Red Wings are saluted in final game of regular season.

April 7: Detroit beats Chicago 7-4 in sixth game of semi-finals and advances to playoff finals against Toronto.

April 18: Wings defeated by Toronto 3-1 in fifth game of playoff finals.

RED WINGS' 2ND ANNUAL HOCKEY SCHOOL AGAIN A TREMENDOUS SUCCESS

For the second straight summer, Olympia's ice surface was put down early to accommodate a hockey school. This year over 250 youngsters attended the three weeks of drills and instruction. Boys from all but three provinces in Canada plus skaters from ten American states (including a total of 150 from Michigan) learned hockey tips from instructors Gordie Howe, Alex Delvecchio, Terry Sawchuk, Doug Barkley, Eddie Bush, Tony Leswick and Jimmy Peters. The enrollment was more than twice the first year's turn-out, and Red Wing officials look forward to another increase for the 1964 School to be held in August.

THE EXCLUSIVE 100-POINT CLUB

Only 33 players in the history of the Detroit Hockey Club have compiled records of 100 points or more during their Red Wing careers. These include four current players - Gordie Howe, who ranks first, Alex Delvecchio, third, Norm Ullman, seventh, and Marcel Pronovost, thirteenth. For a complete list of the 33 "members", see page 58.

RED WINGS' "BIG SIX"

Gadsby	36	18
Howe	35	18
Sawchuk	33	14
Pronovost	33	14
Delvecchio	31	13
Ullman	27	9

(The above players total 86 seasons of NHL experience and 195 years of age).

PART THREE -- THE PAST SEASONS

History of the Detroit Hockey Club

To hockey historians, the names come back easily - Frank Foyston, Carson Cooper, Ebbie Goodfellow, Larry Aurie, Syd Howe, Doug Young, Carl Liscombe, Jack Stewart, Alex Delvecchio and Norm Ullman. The list goes on and on, and a complete roster would bring back many memories. History is memories, so let's take a look at some - such as:

HERBIE LEWIS

The memory of the birth of the Detroit Hockey Club. Some 38 years ago, in 1926, a syndicate of local businessmen purchased a franchise in the National Hockey League. They bought their players from the Victoria team in the old Western Canada League. At the same time Olympia Stadium was being constructed. But the 1926-27 hockey season arrived before the sparkling new building was ready and the infant Detroit Cougars were forced to play their home games across the river in Windsor.

The memory of the first time the Detroiters made the playoffs, in 1929. It was the second year as new manager-coach of the club for Jack Adams, former star NHL player who was brought in by the owners to replace the original manager (who was also the playing-coach), Art Duncan. But the post-season action did not last long as Toronto eliminated the Cougars in two games.

The memory of Detroit's first and only change in ownership. In 1933, the syndicate, out of money and out of hopes for the future of professional hockey in Detroit, sold the franchise to the late James Norris, famous Chicago grain-broker. The energetic Norris, living a dream come true of owning a big league hockey club, changed the team name to Red Wings, brought in the new emblem of a winged wheel, and started the overhauling that resulted in the new Red Wings winning the league championship in 1934 and advancing to the playoff finals before bowing to Chicago. Captain of the 1933-34 team was Herbie Lewis, veteran left wing.

DON GROSSO

Detroit's hockey team rounded out its first decade (1935-36) by shooting all the way to the top of the ladder and winning the Stanley Cup. And the next year they made it two in a row. However, the champion Wings slipped and did not reach the playoff finals for three seasons until the 1940's came around and brought a change in fortunes for the Detroit skaters. Nineteen hundred and forty-three was a third Cup-winning season and it really should have been another two in a row. In the previous year (1941-42), the Wings fell apart in the final round and lost to Toronto in four straight games after winning the first three. Leading scorer of that club was Don "Count" Grosso, who tallied 53 points in the 48 games.

There is the memory of a small, young left winger coming to Detroit in 1944 and claiming a spot on the team. His name was Ted Lindsay. Two years later, another youngster made the team; he was larger but equally as young as Lindsay and they quickly struck up a friendship that made them an unforgettable combination on the ice. His name was Gordon Howe. In 1947 Adams gave up the coaching chores to Tommy Ivan, and the next year saw Detroit start its record seven-year stand as the annual first-place finisher in the league. The team's fourth Cup was won in 1950 in a dramatic playoff series between the Wings and New York. Pete Babando made the night of April 23 a memorable one as he scored the overtime goal that gave Detroit the Cup. Rejoining the team that year star forward, Joe Carveth. There was the puzzling memory of the 1950-51 team that ran up 101 points and lost only 13 games (both still records), but somehow found itself eliminated in the first playoff by Montreal.

JOE CARVETH

There is a memory of the 1951-52 Red Wings - the finest Detroit team. As good on the road as at home, that year's Wings finished first by 22 points and totaled 100 points (52 at Olympia and 48 away), and as a climax the Stanley Cup was added to the list of honors by virtue of a clean sweep - eight straight playoff victories, the first time it had been accomplished. Cups number six and seven came in succession in 1953-54 and 1954-55, the first year with Ivan still coaching and the second year with Jimmie Skinner directing the club. One of the unsung members of those championship teams was Marty Pavelich, who handled the unglamorous role of defensive forward in a first-class manner.

MARTY PAVELICH

And finally there is the memory of the Wings getting into the playoff finals in two of the past three seasons, under the guidance of new Manager-Coach Sid Abel.

HALF-DOZEN PENALTY SHOTS CALLED IN 1962-63

John Bucyk and Murray Oliver of Boston, Camille Henry and Andy Hebenton of New York, Red Kelly of Toronto and Bob Rousseau of Montreal each were awarded rare penalty shots last season. Kelly, Rousseau and Henry scored on their attempts, but Bucyk and Oliver were both beaten by Chicago's Glenn Hall. Hebenton's successful try was disallowed because he "scored" on the rebound.

16 HOURS AND 4 MINUTES IN THE PENALTY BOX? RED WINGS SENTENCED TO THIS FATE IN 1962-63!

The Red Wings established a new team record last season while pacing the league in total penalty minutes. Detroit's 964 minutes were tops in the NHL by 58 over the next high mark, 906 by Chicago. The team shot by its former TPM record of 827, set in the 1954-55 season, topping it by 137 minutes. Credit (or blame, as the case may be) for the new standard must go to Howie Young who personally accounted for 273 minutes (almost a fourth) of the team's total. The Wings still fell 108 minutes short of the league record of 1,072, set by the Black Hawks in 1960-61. Incidentally, Detroit's being at the top of the TPM list is a distinct switch because for the last seven years prior to 1962-63 the Wings ranked either one or two in the least amount of penalty minutes, and for five straight seasons led the league in staying out of the penalty box.

TOP INDIVIDUAL PERFORMERS VS. DETROIT, 1962-63

Jean Beliveau of Montreal gained 14 assists and 18 points while playing against the Red Wings last year to lead Detroit's opponents in those two departments. Beliveau's Canadien teammate, Henri Richard, followed with 12 assists while Stan Mikita of Chicago had 11. Mikita tied Boston's John Bucyk as second-best point-getter versus Detroit with 16 each. In the goal-scoring category, five players each scored seven times on Detroit - Toronto's Frank Mahovlich and Dave Keon, Montreal's Ralph Backstrom and Bill Hicke and Bobby Hull of Chicago.

RED WINGS SHOW INCREASE AT GATE; AVERAGE CROWD OVER 11,500.

Detroit went over the 400,000 mark in attendance again last season as exactly 404,792 people came out to watch the Red Wings in action at Olympia. This total figure and the average figure of 11,565 are increases over those of the past two years. The best one-game crowd was 14,988 for the Jan. 26 matinee game with Chicago. This is a new record for an afternoon game at Olympia.

RED WINGS' BIG THREE FALLS SHORT OF SURPASSING PRODUCTION LINE

In the 1949-50 season, the original "Production Line" of Gordie Howe, Sid Abel and Ted Lindsay produced its best scoring year. This feat was almost eclipsed last season. Thirteen years ago, the Production Line scored 215 points on 92 goals and 123 assists. Last year, the NHL's hottest forward line - Howe, Alex Delvecchio and Parker MacDonald - scored 211 points on 91 goals and 120 assists. However, both marks are below the team record which is also the league record - 226 points (90 goals, 136 assists) by the line of Howe, Lindsay and Norm Ullman in 1956-57.
